

KOKUYO

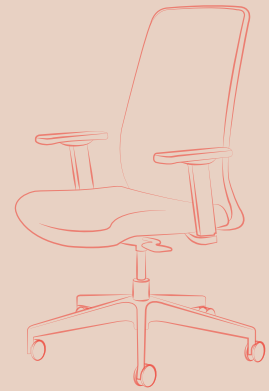

A man with curly hair, wearing a brown jacket, is sitting in a modern office chair with a grey mesh backrest and a yellow seat. He is looking back over his shoulder with a thoughtful expression, resting his chin on his hand. The chair is on a grey carpeted floor. In the background, there is a desk with a laptop, a white mug, and a green cubicle wall. The office has a modern, open-plan design with orange structural beams on the ceiling.

Its contoured outer frame provides a close body-hugging fit that is suitable for dynamic seating—a must for workplace health and happiness. The new shape of happiness is more than just skin deep.

Ergonomically resolved by design

Anthropometric data is proof enough that seating needs to be designed specifically for the region. India has long awaited a new standard in seating comfort. After extensive in-house research and collaboration between our Indian and international teams, we have come up with an ideal solution that's elegant, cost-effective and can be accessorized and personalised beautifully.

Balanced Comfort

The adjustable PU foam support is firm enough to provide the right amount of push while being soft enough to allow movement. The lumbar support can be pushed down to switch off or disconnect the support.

Comprehensive Support

Active seating needs broad support. Now, play comfortably in any work posture—we've got it covered.
